Directors and Officers Liability

Product Fact Sheet

Directors and Officers Liability gives directors and officers the piece of mind that their personal financial assets are protected in case of legal action against their decisions. Alternatively, it can reimburse the corporation for what they compensate (indemnify) directors and officers because of legal action. Securities actions against the company can also be covered under these policies.

This coverage is an important part of coverage for any corporation – whether it be publicly traded, privately owned or not-for-profit – and is often required to attract directors and officers. Our experienced Professional Liability underwriting team can help find solutions for your clients.
